ABOUT ARLINGTON CONFERENCE CENTRE

Situated in vibrant Camden Town, Arlington Conference Centre offers a range of flexible meeting spaces. Whether you're planning a meeting for three people or an exhibition for 300, we have a solution to meet your needs.

Planning your event is simple, as our conference team guide you through the booking, ensuring nothing is missed and making it a stress-free experience.

Your guests will be impressed by our spacious and attractive rooms, state-of-the-art facilities, superb food and exceptional service. They will also love the convenient location and the stylish bars, famous market and lively nightlife on your doorstep.

By booking your event with us, you are helping us to tackle homelessness. All profits are reinvested in Arlington's vital work with some of London's most vulnerable people.

ABOUT ARLINGTON'S HISTORY

Arlington House was the last and largest of the Rowton Houses, a hostel providing clean accommodation for over 1,000 working men during the latter part of the 19th century. Famous residents have included George Orwell and Irish poet Brendan Behan, often featuring in their work and even getting a mention in the song "One Better Day" by Madness.

One Housing took over Arlington in 2009 and transformed it into a multipurpose hub of commercial and support services. There are now 95 residential rooms for homeless and vulnerable adults and 44 studio flats for low-income workers as well as the Conference Centre. Arlington also has a range of social economy partners who rent office spaces and artist studios.
